Interests:

Syntax, morphology, and typology; African (especially Zulu and Swahili), Romance, and Semitic languages; field methodology; phonology, especially tone.

Birth and Citizenship:

Born July 31, 1963, in Portland, Oregon. U.S. citizen.

Degrees:

Ph.D., September 2005, UCLA. Dissertation title: Morphosyntactic Issues in the Zulu Verb.

B.A., summa cum laude, June 1997, UCLA, majored in Linguistics. Coursework included Africa-related humanities courses, third year Swahili, and literature courses in French.

Attended the Higher Institute of Arabic Music, Egyptian Academy of Arts, 1985-1986, majoring in Voice. (Did not complete.)

High school diploma, 1981, Rex Putnam High School. Concentration in Spanish and French.

Current Employment:

Postdoctoral fellow in the Bantu Syntax Project (Word Order and Morphological Marking in Bantu) at the Leiden University Centre for Linguistics (LUCL). Duties include conducting and publishing research (particularly on Wh questions in Bantu languages), giving internal and external presentations, collaborating with other project members, mentoring two graduate students on the project, and teaching graduate- and undergraduate-level linguistics courses.

Teaching Experience:

LUCL, master's and bachelor's level courses Syntactic Issues in Bantu Languages, Structure of Non-Western Languages (in Dutch), Advanced Syntax.

UCLA, Department of Near Eastern Languages and Cultures, summers of 1998 and 2005, instructor for Egyptian Arabic. Besides teaching, duties included selecting materials, setting the syllabus, and writing exams.

UCLA, Department of Linguistics, various quarters 2000, 2001, 2002, 2003, teaching assistant twice for Ling 200B (first quarter graduate syntax), once for Ling 206 (second quarter graduate syntax), and once for Ling 114 (historical linguistics). Duties included grading homework, meeting with students individually, and teaching discussion sessions.

Facilitator of Los Angeles Esperanto Conversation Circle, 2004-2005. Duties included preparing written teaching materials.

Los Angeles, 1994-1998, various Arabic and Spanish language teaching jobs, including at Berlitz (received Berlitz training).

Alexandria, Egypt, summers of 1994, 1995, and 1996, Northwestern University summer abroad program, instructor for first year Standard Arabic and facilitator. Teaching duties included setting syllabus, developing supplementary materials, and writing exams. Facilitator duties included leading travel activities for up to fifteen undergraduates and resolving conflicts.

Cairo, Egypt, 1985-1993, private instructor of Egyptian and Standard Arabic.

Milwaukie, Oregon, 1980, Clackamas Community College, taught course in beginning Esperanto.

Other Language-Related Work Experience:

UCLA, 2003-2005, Language Materials Project, graduate student researcher. Duties included writing language profiles and documenting instructional materials and primary source materials suitable for instruction.

UCLA, 2000, developed some 400 etymologies of Arabic borrowings in a Swahili epic poem, in project for Prof. Thomas Hinnebusch. Available on website.

Cairo, Egypt, 1991-1993, Clinical Services Improvement Project, translator (Arabic and English).

Current Projects:

“Asking why in Zulu”, 60-page manuscript, in preparation, draft available on my Web site. 30-page section being developed as separate article.

Joint paper with Peter Muriungi on locative inversion in Tharaka. Trip planned for January 2008 to Tromsø, Norway for collaboration.

Joint paper with Kristina Riedel on the conjoint/disjoint alternation in Smbaa. See Presentations section.

Reason questions in Egyptian Arabic, EPP and case-assigning properties of complementizers in Egyptian and Classical Arabic.

Fundamentals of Zulu Tone with Dr. Zilungile Sosibo, Cape Peninsula University. This is intended to be a supplementary classroom textbook for post-beginning to advanced students of Zulu.

Courses I Can Teach:

Courses in syntax, morphology, field methodology, and typology at all levels.
Undergraduate course in phonology, computational linguistics, language acquisition, phonetics, and historical linguistics.

Language courses in Zulu, Swahili, and Arabic (Standard and Egyptian).

Grant Activity:

Developed research project proposal in 2003 with colleague Harold Torrence for on-site research in Ghana to work on the endangered Avatime language to produce a reference grammar, dictionary, and texts, with Russ Schuh as primary investigator. The project was submitted to both the Endangered Language Documentation Programme and the National Science Foundation.

An application for a smaller grant was submitted by me and Harold Torrence to the Foundation for Endangered Languages in January 2005 to fund a smaller project to process existing Avatime lexical and audio data.

Languages:

Languages in which I have a high degree of competence: Arabic (Egyptian and Standard), Dutch, English (first language), Esperanto, French, Spanish, Swahili, Zulu.

Other languages I have studied at some depth: Chinese, German, Hebrew (Modern), Italian, Japanese, Portuguese, Russian.

Other languages in which I have conducted field work: Kalanga (Bantu), Lakhota (Siouian), Smbaa (Bantu), Sukuma (Bantu), Tharaka (Bantu), Wolof (West Atlantic).

Computer Skills:

Computer programming. Experienced in Python, Java, JavaScript, and CGI programming, and to a much lesser extent in Scheme (LISP), Basic, and Prolog.

Web management. Highly proficient in HTML. Duties during four-year membership of UCLA departmental Web site committee included designing and updating site. Played leading role in complete redesign of the site.

Server management. Skilled in administration and installation of Linux systems, including configuration of server software such as Apache and CUPS. Domain name management.

Longstanding contributor to the Mozilla project, which develops a free, open source Web browser. Contributions include over 170 bug reports and many test cases. Contributor in similar capacity, with over 60 bug reports, to the OpenOffice.org project, which develops a free, open source office suite, and to the KDE project, which develops a free, open source desktop environment for Unix-like operating systems.

Extended Language-Related Travel:

Two field work trips to South Africa: 11-week trip to village of Ophepheni, KZN, in 2006, and 3-month trip near town of Port Shepstone, KZN, in 2002.

Six-week trip to Kenya and Tanzania, 2000.

Several months in France, 1996-2003.

Lived in Cairo, Egypt, for ten years, 1982-1984 and 1985-1993. Spent additional six months in Alexandria, Egypt.

Was an exchange student for one summer in Mexico during high school.

Awards:

Lenart Graduate Travel Fellowship, 2003, for three-month trip to South Africa to conduct dissertation research.

FLAS (Title VI) fellowship, 2001-2002, for the study of Zulu.

National Science Foundation fellowship, 1998-2001.

Won Teague-Melville-Elliot undergraduate humanities writing award for senior thesis, 1997.

Community Service:

Facilitator in Los Angeles Esperanto Conversation Circle, 2004-2005, as described above.

Volunteer work for the OpenOffice.org and Mozilla projects, described above under "Computer Skills".

Zulu language consultant and coach for American Film Institute student film project Princess.
